

Handwritten:
Pak. F. del
India
Nelson 28.2.03

Indian decision to boycott the SAF games, planned to be held in Pakistan, did not come as a surprise to the sports loving and spirited Pakistanis who always extend their warmth to the participating guest sportsmen irrespective of their caste and creed. The Indian decision, however, demonstrated the rowdiest mindset of Hindu prejudice against the entertainment seeking people of South Asia in general and Pakistan in particular.

Indian non-participation in the SAF game does not bother any of the participants except that it created bad taste and openly showed the acrimony of Indian attitude towards sports and her neighbours. Simply speaking Indians lack norms of decency expected out of a country of the size of India and the collective sense of sportsmen spirit. Being extremist Hindus, the Indian leaders attempt to make a case against Pakistan every time an event emerges, no matter it is a sports or any other entertainment-oriented cultural occasion.

India has never compromised her hate towards Pakistan. Ever since Pakistan was carved out of Indian landmass, the Indian government especially the Hindu majority in India accorded Pakistan a step-motherly treatment, Indian leaders rejected the two nation theory, based on which Pakistan was created, and the very existence of Pakistan. They hated Pakistan and Muslims, because Pakistan became a heaven for down-trodden Muslims of India, whom Hindus wanted to rule under the new rules set by democratic system of government. Hindus being an overwhelming majority saw a chance to rule India forever and thus accepted wittingly the western democratic system in India.

They, however, were misled by a Hindu assessment that Pakistan shall soon be a failed state, unable to manage its affairs. India remained committed to create situations and exploit events to inflict serious damage to Pakistan's interest. Besides imposing four wars, India succeeded in 1971 in creating Bangladesh. India tested the first nuclear bomb in 1974. This forced Pakistan to undertake measures to maintain deterrence without nuclear test.

Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in 1979 brought Pakistan into front line

Indian aversions

M. Anwar

Indian attitude towards Pakistan grew further negative due to Kashmir.

coalition with USA, Europe and other Jihadis, to block Russia. India - a close Soviet ally, maintained an aggressive posture towards Pakistan. She concentrated her forces against Pakistani borders, fabricated stories and stage-managed dramas to hijack planes, conducted terrorist acts in Pakistan and launched a deliberate campaign to tarnish the image of Pakistan. Many people believe that President Zia-ul-Haque's air crash was the game plan of Indian secret agency RAW.

Indian attitude towards Pakistan grew further negative as an indigenous freedom movement in Kashmir began to offset Indian draconian rule. The movement was only morally supported by Pakistan. India labelled Pakistan for fighting a proxy war in Kashmir. In order to malign Pakistan and make a case against her, India launched a full-fledged psychological campaign to muster internal cohesion and influence the world. India desperately tried to implicate Pakistan in different terrorist activities.

Anything happening in India due to negligence of local administration and poor political performance, the blame shifted to Pakistan. Even the minor incidents including of law and order situation were attributed to ISI. The aim was to get Pakistan declared as a terrorist state. Though Indian efforts directed to implicating Pakistan were frustrated, India did not give up and is still continuing with her sinister design to malign Pakistan. Indian intrigues led by BJP offensively target Pakistan using indirect and unique techniques of propaganda.

Sept 11 2001 presented India as an exceptional situation to exploit and implicate Pakistan. When Pakistan became a coalition partner in US-led war against terrorism, India felt burnt and incapacitated. She, however, left no stone unturned to malign Pakistan. India goes on to target Pakistan through her fabricated stories and propaganda design using dedicated media to pose and suggest to the world and USA that Pakistan is a terrorist harbouring country. Sometimes India fabricates cracks between USA and Pakistan in fighting terrorism while on other occasions India spreads rumours about fake rift between Pakistan government and military.

India tries to irritate the audience with fallacious reporting that a difference of opinion among top Pak-Army Generals may lead to mutiny or near mutiny situation. Will India mind her own business and leave Pakistan alone? We in Pakistan are fed up with false accusation and clumsy behaviour. The whole world has rejected Indian venomous propaganda for its fake substance and twisted contents. It is suggested to the Indian BJP extremist Hindus to concentrate on the mess they have created all over India including Kashmir and stop insinuating Pakistan.